Bringing More Resources to Your Institution: The Federal Grant Making Process (G, SS)

Carr

The federal government plays a significant role in providing resources to help you build innovative programs that increase student access, success or equity. It is important that your institution is positioned to capture these grants and is able to compete against other applicants on a nationwide scale. Panel participants will discuss the policy implications of the proposed reauthorization of the Higher Education Act and how colleges can best position themselves to obtain grants at the federal level.

Speakers: Tom Downs, Principal, Downs Government Affairs

The Importance of Socio-Ethnic Data Disaggregation to Student Success (G, SS)

Tofanelli

In order to close the achievement gap between different groups on campus, it is important that campuses disaggregate their student success data to be able to fully evaluate the impact of student success and equity measures. It is not enough to simply look at how Latinos or Asian Pacific Islanders are doing in a broad sense, but also to utilize existing tools and resources to determine how different nationalities within those ethnic groups are performing. This is particularly true for the Asian Pacific Islander community in which relatively high success rates can mask wide differences in performance for different populations.

Speakers: Craig Hayward, Director of Research, Bakersfield Community College; Linda Wah, Trustee, Pasadena City College and CCT Board Member

Addressing Affordability Issues Through Open Educational Resources (G, FR)

Compagno

Textbooks comprise an estimated 40% of the total cost of attendance at community colleges. Faculty across California have been looking for ways to address the high cost of books, often a key barrier to students' completion and success, by implementing Open Educational Resources (OER) systemwide. This session will introduce an approach for coordinating state level activities to increase OER availability and for supporting local OER implementation. Learn how your college can have high-quality teaching and learning resources while also meeting the affordability needs of your students.

Speakers: Julie Bruno, President, Academic Senate for California Community Colleges; Dave Dillon, Counselor/Professor & Chair, OER Task Force of Academic Senate for California Community Colleges, Grossmont College; and Michelle Pilati, Professor of Psychology, Rio Hondo College, Academic Senate for California Community Colleges

Moderator: Bernie Rhinerson, Trustee, San Diego CCD and ACL Chair

Brief Remarks: Ann Ransford, Trustee, Glendale CCD and CCCT Board Chair

Community colleges have gained greater recognition as a means to a better life – as resources for preparing people for secure employment and a family-sustaining income. The national attention to increasing postsecondary educational attainment, combined with growing economic anxiety, has made community colleges the focus of many federal and state policy initiatives. The landscape of higher education, particularly for community colleges, can expect even more change as Congress begins serious consideration of reauthorization of the Higher Education Act (HEA). Learn about what's at stake and the forces driving the future of higher education.

It will also feature programs that are successfully meeting those needs and share strategies for building local and statewide support for this work.

The Vision for Success report calls on the system to eliminate the achievement gap in "high need" regions of the state. One strategy to make progress on this goal centers around a CO and CVHEC partnership which builds upon CVHEC activities in order to incorporate Guided Pathways resources, support and tools now being developed by the Chancellor's Office to support the Central Valley. Learn more about this burgeoning effort and plans for future Guided Pathways regional support in other areas of the state!

Building a Culture of Civic Engagement throughout California Community Colleges (G, SS)

Bataglieri

The past year has seen a resurgence of interest in the role of community colleges as institutions of learning and as community gathering places in civic and community engagement. This presentation will introduce the Civic Impact Project, an initiative of the Foundation for California Community Colleges designed to increase voter participation, civic literacy, and community involvement through peer-to-peer student outreach and its scholars program.

Community colleges can play an active, non-partisan role preparing students to become informed and active members of our democracy. Best practices from a fall 2016 pilot with 25 colleges and examples of diverse college program models will also be shared. Attendees will leave with a greater understanding of working definitions of civic engagement and examples of how key stakeholders can help support a culture of civic engagement throughout the California Community Colleges in the midst of a highly charged political climate.

The Status of the Community College Baccalaureate Degree in California and Nationally (G, SS)

Beavis

In 2017, Ohio became the 24th state in the U.S. to offer baccalaureate degrees. Nearly four years ago, Governor Jerry Brown signed Senate Bill 850 (Block) authorizing a pilot program for 15 California community college districts to offer baccalaureate programs in workforce development. Efforts to expand the pilot program have been met with organized political opposition, yet California's baccalaureate degree gap continues to increase. Join this distinguished panel of national and state leaders of the community college baccalaureate degree movement to discuss the political and economic context as well as strategic issues germane to these efforts.

Note that there will be an opportunity to delve even more deeply into strategic considerations and approaches for California Community College Baccalaureate degree advocates at 4:00 PM in a strategy session: Strategic Considerations for Advancing the Community College Baccalaureate Degree.*

Speakers: Constance Carroll, Chancellor, San Diego CCD; Judy Miner, Chancellor, Foothill-DeAnza CCD; Joe Wyse, President/Superintendent, Shasta-Tehama-Trinity Joint Community College District; Beth Hagan, Executive Director, Community College Baccalaureate Association; Larry Galizio, President/CEO, Community College League of California

The Honorable Anthony Rendon
Speaker, California State Assembly, 63rd District

Speaker Anthony Rendon represents the 63rd Assembly District in the California State Assembly. The district includes nine cities – Bell, Cudahy, Hawaiian Gardens, Lakewood, Lynwood, Maywood, Paramount, South Gate and a northern portion of Long Beach.

Rendon was sworn-in as the 70th Speaker of the Assembly in March 2016. In his first year as Speaker, the Assembly passed a series of landmark progressive legislation, including the nation's first $15 minimum wage, extension of California's climate change reduction goals, overtime pay for farmworkers, and groundbreaking policies on gun and tobacco use. Rendon authored Proposition 1, the $7.5 billion state water bond, which voters passed by a 67% to 33% margin in the November 2014 election. During the bond development process, Rendon took input from residents over the course of 16 public hearings throughout the state, resulting in a measure with no earmarks or backroom deals.

Prior to serving in the Assembly, Rendon was an educator, non-profit executive director, and environmental activist. He led Plaza de la Raza Child Development Services, Inc. as Executive Director. "Plaza" provides comprehensive child development and social and medical services to over 2,300 children and families offered through Plaza's 35 child development centers located throughout Los Angeles County. Before working at Plaza, Rendon served as the Interim Executive Director of the California League of Conservation Voters from 2008 to 2009. Rendon attended Cerritos Community College before earning his Bachelors and Masters of Arts degrees from California State University, Fullerton. As a recipient of a National Endowment for the Humanities Fellowship, he earned his Ph.D. from the University of California, Riverside and completed post-doctoral work at Boston University. Rendon served as adjunct professor in the Department of Political Science and Criminal Justice at California State University, Fullerton from 2001 to 2008. Rendon resides in Lakewood with his wife Annie.
